

Packages - Bug #1281

[your-freedom] This package allows a sublime-text install

2017-04-08 10:52 AM - gvJaime

Status: not-a-bug	% Done: 0%
Priority: freedom issue
Assignee:
Category:
Description
I was looking for an free IDE substitute for Atom, tried to install lime-text, but got sublime-text instead which is non-free (I think). Shouldn't sublime-text be included into the blacklist? We lost Atom-editor as a free package due to the electron infractions, so ending up with sublime installed is likely to happen.

History

#1 - 2017-04-09 11:08 AM - Anonymous

- Assignee set to Anonymous

#2 - 2017-04-18 07:32 PM - Anonymous

- Assignee deleted (Anonymous)

#3 - 2017-04-19 04:35 PM - isacdaavid

gvJaime wrote:

I was looking for an free IDE substitute for Atom, tried to install lime-text, but got sublime-text instead which is non-free (I think).

Shouldn't sublime-text be included into the blacklist?

I see neither package (sublime-text, lime-text) in the repos; only a bunch of sublime-text* packages in AUR.

where did you get it from? AUR blacklisting isn't exactly supported, and will probably never be.

we could blacklist some AUR packages if there's a compelling reason to do it, but first I would need to know what the exact packages are

#4 - 2017-05-20 09:37 PM - oaken-source

- Status changed from open to not-a-bug

there is nothing to blacklist here.