What info do you need from me?

#5 - 2018-04-24 01:13 PM - freemor

Information such as:
when did it change?
How did it change?
in what application?
while you were doing what?
posting screen caps of the font rendering issue would be helpful
What are the font settings in the application in which you are seeing the change?

Information such as:
when did it change?

A week ago or a little bit less than that.

How did it change?

I noticed that my terminal had a font with different sizes for the letters, I couldn't read the terminal very good.

in what application?

XFCE terminal and Emacs, others too.

while you were doing what?

I updated with pacman -Syu and rebooted the computer. I logged in to XFCE and opened a terminal with Alt + F3.

posting screen caps of the font rendering issue would be helpful

Done.

What are the font settings in the application in which you are seeing the change?

Monospace Regular 12

- Status changed from info needed to not-a-bug

There is no exact date, name of the package that generates the problem, or any error message.

I attach a screenshot of a font here. It is not monospace visually but the name says "monospace".

I just checked the font name: Monospace Regular.

Program: XFCE Terminal.
