Package comes from Arch now and the correct license is stated, can be marked as fixed AFAIK it always came from Arch, although I'm happy to be proven wrong.

The project changed the license to GNU GPLv3:
https://github.com/PapirusDevelopmentTeam/papirus-icon-theme/issues/1049 and the Arch package was lagging behind with updating the license field.

Unfortunately they didn't specify whether it's the "only" or the "or any later version" variant.
It would be so much easier if everyone just used SPDX.

Ah right, I wasn't too sure. I didn't really double check to see where the package was coming from back then but I guess it was from Arch.

Well either way it's at least somewhat specified

- Status changed from unconfirmed to not-a-bug

Closing as the license field was updated

Surely it was "fixed" and not "not-a-bug"?
