I did some wallpapers, in both 16:9 and 4:3 proportions (although the sizes are the same and they aren't SVG files). They could be used as default wallpapers for live session without installing Parabola, etc. I hear proposals for more wallpapers :) here they are: https://my.owndrive.com/public.php?service=files&t=74479bcf5ee371224999b5df2c866f87&download&path=/PNG/wallpaper%201%20-%204-3%20aspect%20ratio.png https://my.owndrive.com/public.php?service=files&t=74479bcf5ee371224999b5df2c866f87&download&path=/PNG/wallpaper%201%20-%2016-9%20aspect%20ratio.png https://my.owndrive.com/public.php?service=files&t=74479bcf5ee371224999b5df2c866f87&download&path=/PNG/wallpaper%202%20-%204-3%20aspect%20ratio.png https://my.owndrive.com/public.php?service=files&t=74479bcf5ee371224999b5df2c866f87&download&path=/PNG/wallpaper%202%20-%2016-9%20aspect%20ratio.png the license is CC-BY-SA 3.0 Costa Rica

Thank you. I should have known that I don't have to bother wallpapers for the live system. ;) I like both. I'll use one of them as a default wallpaper in Parabola artwork for GNOME. I have a plan to package our default artwork so that it can be used both on live and installed systems across desktop environments, available in the single location (like /usr/share/themes/). I like to try to replace GDM login screen background to match position of the logo on a wallpaper; maybe use a desaturated version of the stripped wallpaper there. Any feedback is much welcomed as always. :P
