So are a lot of things that shouldn't be.

A file called rsyncBlacklist was on the old repo if I recall correctly but I don't see it now on the new one.

Perhaps it was rm'ed? This is the same repo as we have always had, we haven't migrated to the x86_64 box yet.

I did some magic with unionfs, and now ~repo/public/ contains main/ (rsync), http-extra/, and http (the union of the two). So now it's super easy to make things only show up in HTTP.

And, now I just need to figure out which things can be made HTTP-only.
