

Packages - Privacy Issue #677

Iceweasel, 'Hello powered by Telefonica' modules

2015-02-20 04:50 AM - pecg

Status: fixed	% Done: 100%
Priority: bug
Assignee:
Category:
Description Iceweasel is blobbed with the plugin described in the title of the issue, which automatically sends data to Mozilla and TokBox, Inc (its developers) that feature cannot be blocked, and this plugin cannot be removed or disabled, it has been imposed to us. Despite what Mozilla says in this page: https://www.mozilla.org/en-US/privacy/firefox-hello/ about that they care for our privacy, we can't be sure if it is really true, given the fact that Mozilla has said in the past they will adopt EME to not lose its popularity (this another problem worth discussing). Point number 5 of the Terms of use, is very scary (see: https://www.mozilla.org/en-US/about/legal/terms/firefox-hello/). Point 6 describes vague and ambiguous terms, and a wrong use of the word 'proprietary', even if its license is MPL 2.0 we shouldn't trust it. Refer to the picture in the attachment.
Related issues:
Related to Packages - Privacy Issue #645: New Privacy Violating unnecessary s...	fixed 2015-01-17

History

#1 - 2015-02-20 04:55 AM - Anonymous

- Assignee set to Anonymous

#2 - 2015-02-20 04:56 AM - Anonymous

- Related to Privacy Issue #645: New Privacy Violating unnecessary services in Iceweasel 35 added

#3 - 2015-02-20 08:45 PM - Anonymous

- % Done changed from 0 to 50

- Status changed from open to in progress

#4 - 2015-02-21 12:03 AM - Anonymous

- % Done changed from 50 to 100

- Status changed from in progress to fixed

#5 - 2015-02-27 11:37 PM - shackra

The feature was removed? As long it is not proprietary software, it should be available for those users who want to use it (i.e.: me).

Files

2015-02-19-223530_1440x900_scrot.png	100 KB	2015-02-20	pecg
--------------------------------------	--------	------------	------